Fall general membership meeting

Past officials cited at Chamber dinner

Past presidents and secretaries of the Appomattox County Chamber of Commerce were honored during the chamber's annual fall general membership meeting last Thursday at the Appomattox County High School cafeteria.

Past chamber presidents cited at the meeting included Roy A. Moon, W. W. Blythe (deceased), J. Franklin Vaughan, Thomas W. Mathews, James J. Pugh, Jr., William S. Slagle, and Susan Bailey.

Steve Marshall, who made the awards presentations, also cited the efforts of current chamber president, Jim Nolen.

Past secretaries who were honored at the meeting included Martha Stimpson, June Chenault, Judy Pugh, and Geraldine Marshall.

The presidents and secretaries received a custom-designed plate by Shearer Robertson featuring the original artwork by Frank Thomas used in the new chamber brochure.

Keynote speaker at the dinner was Dr. James I. Robertson, Jr., professor of history at Virginia Tech. Robertson spoke on the Civil War as it affected the individuals involved. His talk, "Johnny Rebs and Billy Yanks: Their War," was warmly received by the chamber members.

Also on hand at the meeting were two local Civil War enthusiasts, Troop Repass and Harold Wyatt. Repass attended the dinner meeting dressed in the uniform of a Confederate captain from Texas, and Wyatt came dressed as a Union brigidier general. They brought with them various Civil War artifacts, including several authentic weapons from the Civil War era.

Three new chamber board members were elected at the meeting Thursday night. They include Floyd Williams, Jack Evans and Steve Cawthorne. They replace outgoing board members Carl Miller, Brod Pack and Henry Wright.

Nolen, who was re-elected president of the chamber at the board's meeting Monday night noted that the chamber's membership roster has grown to include 80 members, including 54 businesses and 26 individuals.

Survey underway

The Marketing and Distributive Education classes at Appomattox County High School are presently working on compiling a directory of all businesses in Appomattox County. The students are hoping to provide the Appomattox County Chamber of Commerce with the completed directory by January 1, 1983.

Mr. John McHale, Coordinator of the Marketing and Distributive Education program at Appomattox County High School, hopes that this project will give his students an opportunity to receive experience in interviewing and presenting themselves to the business community. The finished directory should also help stimulate business within our community and should prove to be valuable to newcomers of Appomattox County.

The students began canvassing the business community Tuesday and the interviews should be completed by November 15. If you would like to receive more information about the project or if you have a business in your home that you would like to have included in this directory, please contact Mr. John McHale at the High School, phone 352-5317.

Local men win conservation awards

Two Appomattox men, Robert McClenny and David Coffman, were honored at the annual Virginia Wildlife Federation Conservation Awards Program held in Richmond October 16.

The Virginia Wildlife Federation sponsors a statewide Conservation Awards Program which is designed to identify and recognize the Old Dominion's top conservationists. The Awards Program has been established by the National Wildlife Federation and is jointly sponsored by the Virginia Wildlife Federation and Sears, Roebuck and Co.

David Coffman, Public Affairs Forester for Westvaco, was master of ceremonies for the occasion. Guest speaker for the dinner meeting was the Honorable James G. Watts, Secretary, U.S. Dept. of Interior.

Roy S. Black, President of the Virginia Wildlife Federation, made the presentations.

Robert McClenny, District Conservationist, serving Appomattox, Amherst, and Campbell Counties and the City of Lynchburg, received a special President's Award.

McClenny has a distinguished record of service and dedication as district conservationist for the United States Dept. of Agriculture's Soil Conservationist service. He serves as the soil conservation service liaison with the Robert E. Lee Soil and Water Conservation District Board and in this capacity has been a motivating force behind the development of a conservation program for the citizens of Central Virginia. He is responsible for the Robert E. Lee Soil and Water Conservation District receiving first runner up and first place in Virginia in the Goodyear Conservation Awards Program for Meritorious Service to Conservation.

McClenny is noted for his knowledge and creativity in working with other agencies. He is widely respected for his knowledge, courtesy, and tireless efforts in the cause of water and soil conservation.

One noteworthy achievement, spearheaded by the knowledge and efforts of McClenny, has been the steambank stabilization project on the Staunton River, below the Leesville Dam. He worked exceedingly long hours with engineers from Appalachian Power Company, landowner of the Staunton River Basin, the District Board Members, Pittsylvania County officials and the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers. As a result of McClenny's knowledge and perservance, there are presently intact three structures protecting more than one-fourth mile of stream bank serving as an experimental model and conserving the rich, alluvial soils of the Staunton River bottomlands.

David Coffman, winner of the Cougar Statuette as Conservation Communicator Of The Year, is forester for Westvaco. He has effectively used his communication skills to inform and educate the public concerning conservation of natural resources. He made significant contribution through his long standing commitment to environmental education using a variety of Communication techniques.

As Public Affairs Forester for Westvaco's Virginia woodlands, he is responsible for administering the company's program for environmental education, hunting, recreation, and community relations. He serves as liaison for trade associations, conservation organizations, and many government agencies. As a district forester for six years, he actively sought opportunities for woodlands tours, civic clubs and school programs on conservation topics. His dedication to conservation education through communication goes far beyond his professional responsibilities.

His personal service to the Operation Respect Movement has been exceptional through his innovative utilization of respect materials in all Hunter Information

Ruby Smith sets school hoop record

Ruby Smith, a senior at Appomattox County High School, set a new career scoring record for the ACHS varsity girls' basketball team in Thursday's game against Liberty.

Ruby broke the record, held since 1976 by Maryjane Smith, early in the third quarter of the Liberty game, when she passed the 1,478 mark posted by Maryjane Smith in her senior year at Appomattox. Ruby went on to score 18 points against Liberty to raise her accumulated varsity career points to 1,484. Ruby currently ranks second in career scoring in the Seminole District, behind Cindy Lewis of Rustburg, who graduated last year.

"The game we were involved in was foremost in my mind at the time, but it feels really good to have broken the school record," Ruby said Monday of her accomplishment.

A team captain on this year's Raiderette squad, Ruby was presented a plaque denoting her achievement by Coach Mary Tolley.

"The team and the school are very proud of her accomplishment," Tolley said. "Overall, she's one of the best athletes I've had the opportunity to coach here at Appomattox. She's a good girl, and she's worked awfully hard for everything she's achieved," the coach added.

Tolley concluded, "I think Ruby is going to make some college a very good athlete for four more years."

RUBY SMITH (left), a senior at Appomattox County High School, broke the girls' basketball career scoring record last week in the Raiderettes' game against Liberty. Ruby's point total after the Liberty game was 1,484. The old record, held since 1976 by Maryjane Smith, was 1,478 points. Coach Mary Tolley presented Ruby with a plaque denoting the feat.

Benefit planned for local accident victim

Xi Gamma Tau Sorority will hold a Skate-A-Thon at A. J. Skateworld on November 2 from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. for the benefit of Tracy Goin. Admission will be $2.00.

Tracy, 17, a senior at Appomattox County High School, has been hospitalized in the Lynchburg General Hospital since an auto accident on Sept. 18, having spent more than 30 days in the Intensive Care Unit.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution, please contact Janice McCormick, president of Xi Gamma Tau at 352-7676 or contributions may be mailed to Xi Gamma Tau Skate-A-Thon, attention of Janice McCormick, Appomattox, Virginia 24522.

In you needed practice on how to be agreeable on a disagreeable day, today (Monday) was made to order. Rain and wind combined to whet one's desire to stay inside. The weather man was early with "trick or treat." And school kids standing out in bad weather waiting for the bus. But somehow we all made it and are better prepared for February. Rain is preferable to sleet.

Football fans are divided into two groups. High school and college fans are happy or not according to results of the Friday games and season records. But the pro football fans are "regusted." No games due to a strike. ACHS stands at 7 to 1, and should end up 9 to 1. Away this Friday, at Altavista. U.Va. finally won one. Slippery Rock 13, Lock Haven St. 10. Jerry Robinson (no kin) will be remembered here as a former ACHS coach. He had a 30-17-3 record here. He has been inducted into the Lenoir-Rhyne College Sports Hall of Fame. As a college player he starred in football, baseball and track. He is now in the real estate business.

Hallowe'en comes on Sunday, but I guess most will observe it Saturday. Sunday is not a good day for "tricks."

Birthday greetings to TV entertainer Minnie Pearl. She is younger than I am. Plays the piano better, too.

Last week I recalled my years doing a couple of radio programs at WWOD, Lynchburg. Should have mentioned that Mrs. Richard Wingfield of Appomattox, worked there at the time, writing copy for commercials and programs.

Election Day is approaching and hope all eligible voters show up. Some state constitutional amendments are to be voted on and I know nothing about them. I have heard very little local discussion about the election. Electioneering on Martha Street is as rare as a tobacco-chewing football player. But let us get at it and may the results be for the best interests of Virginia.

Lions Club meeting set for tonight

The Appomattox Lions Club will celebrate its 43rd anniversary on Thursday night, October 28, with a Ladies Night Dinner at 6:45 in the Appomattox County High School Cafeteria.

At this time the two remaining charter members, Watkins M. Abbitt, Sr. and Clyde G. O'Brien, will be recognized.

Following dinner The Jacktale Players of Ferrum College will present a program of folk music and humor.

All members are urged to attend.

Roger Godsey of Appomattox successfully predicted the outcomes of all but three of last week's 23 football contest games to claim top honors in the contest.

Rita Marshall, who was the previous week's contest winner, took second place honors after a five-way tiebreaker. The tiebreaker was between Marshall, Brett Marston, Jerry L. Woods, Laura Mayberry, and Billy Thompson, all of whom missed four of the contest games.

Marshall's predictions of the exact scores of the two tiebreaker games -- the VPI game and the Appomattox varsity game -- were closer to the actual scores than those of the other contestants involved in the tiebreaker.

For his skill in predicting the outcomes of the contest games, Godsey will receive a check for $20 from the Times-Virginian, and a free chicken dinner from the Chicken Palace Restaurant.

Marshall will receive a check for $10 from the newspaper, as well as a free chicken dinner from the Chicken Palace for her second-place finish.

The football contest, a popular autumn feature of the Times-Virginian, continues this week, with full details on contest rules and prizes inside this issue of the paper.
